

Ellen Karine Grov

is a Registered Nurse, has a Master in Nursing Science, and a PhD from Faculty of Medicine, University of Oslo. She holds a postdoctoral research career grant connected National Resource Centre for Studies of Long-term Effects after Cancer, and is associate professor at Buskerud University College, Faculty of Health Science. Her PhD thesis dealt with primary caregivers of cancer patients in the palliative phase, and aspects of their quality of life and caregiver reaction. She currently studies elderly cancer survivors, their health and psychosocial situation.